Throughout my life I have been passionate about educating myself and others. I have found that using education as a tool to allow others to reach their full potential provides me with immense fulfillment. In the past, I have tutored both privately and through Kumon, a tutoring center. As a student at Indiana University, I work as an RHA eco-representative, which allows me to educate the campus community about sustainable living. The experiences I have had as an educator have allowed me to gain better communication skills and an overall greater understanding of the different values that drive people to work towards success. I hope to continue learning and in the future, use my skills to educate and make a positive impact throughout my community.

Check out my brand pitch to learn more about what I've done!