I am an Indiana University student studying Finance and Marketing; however, I am not your typical student. I have 2 years of military service and the exposure from the army has taught me many valuable lessons.

I have learned to be a LEADER. Strong leaders lead by example, which means they take on all the same challenges as their team, if not more. Every good leader has an abundance of discipline.

I have learned to OVERCOME adversity. Everyone goes through some adversity at some point during the army. Those times of adversity give you enormous courage and strength for the adversity that’s going to come in real life.

It is my PERSONAL MISSION to use these skills to have an advantage in the business world.
