I was about five years old when I saw a tv for the first time in my life. I took a few computer science classes in high school and it was very difficult for me. I really enjoyed coding games using python. I don't think I'm trained that well compared to my peers because I have forgotten most of the stuff I learned. One of my strengths is that I love figuring out ways to make a certain thing work using coding. One of my weaknesses is that I can’t remember a lot of the vocabulary. I consider myself a beginner in the use of technology. In my future job field, I would have to be good with technology and be well versed. Technology is the future and will always continue to be apart of our life so I expect myself to have a stable job and help me achieve my dream; I want to be able to help countries around the world with technology.
