There are some obstacles in life that seem impossible. A few years ago, I would have considered my biggest obstacle impossible because of the numerous doctors that told me they had no idea what was wrong with me. Overcoming being severely ill and getting myself back into the community was a huge challenge. That’s when I decided to use magic as a way to communicate with people. Photography also became a fun hobby to get myself out in the community, exploring nature, and sharing my findings with others. After getting back on my feet, I realized I had overcome what seemed nearly impossible, being myself again in the tough society that we live in. Now, being able to entertain, inspire, and teach others with my creativity, I now know that IMPOSSIBLE IS JUST AN ILLUSION.
